Venezuela

Lonnie James Burton arrived in Venezuela as a young child and was raised in Venezuela. He grew to be a youth pastor and musician in the churches where his parents ministered. He returned to the states when he was eighteen to attend Indiana Bible College. Returning after to Venezuela as an AIMER, working in a Bible school. During that time he ministered on the weekends as an evangelist and started to open churches in the Andes Mountains. After starting a work he would pastor until there was a graduate from the Bible school that wanted to pastor that work.

The Burtons have worked as caretakers, administrators and teachers at the National Bible School while starting four churches. They received their missionary appointment to Venezuela in 2004 and have since seen several hundred students graduate.
