Biography

On October 9th, 2004, Jerry and “Tee” Fudala were married in Pennsylvania and moved to Belleview, Florida in 2007. In July of 2017, they left their home church, Souls Harbor First Pentecostal Church of Belleview, FL, and moved to Chiang Mai, Thailand where they started the Pentecostals of Chiang Mai church. They both hold a general license with the UPCI and have served in various roles throughout their ministries. Jerry serves in many ways including pastoring, playing the drums, preaching at conferences and revivals, speaking at funerals, and teaching personal Bible studies. He is a student of the Word and desires to know Jesus and to make Him known. Tee is an effective minister, preacher, and translator who has worked with speakers such as David Bernard, Jack Cunningham, James Varnum, Brian Lane, Charles Robinette, Lynden Shalm, Bruce Howell, Nathaniel Haney, and Rodney Shaw. She also coordinates accommodations and transportation for the Thai General Conference team annually.

They arrived in Thailand with only a word from the Lord that they were in His will. After only their second service, they baptized their first convert in their bathtub. Since then, they have baptized around 250 people in pools, bathtubs, rivers, and truckbeds, and have helped pray over 800 people through to the baptism of the Holy Ghost. They were able to rent and renovate a small building where they have been livestreaming services since 2020. They were asked to help with the Unreached People Groups initiative and have worked closely with different cultural groups. They have had several local ministers (male and female) from their church receive a ministerial license with the Thai UPC. Their goal is to see more churches started locally and nationally, to train more translators, and to strengthen national leadership.
